DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

1. The information disclosure statement filed 9/16/05 fails to comply with 37 CFR 1.98(a)(3) because it does not include a concise explanation of the relevance, as it is presently understood by the individual designated in 37 CFR 1.56(c) most knowledgeable about the content of the information, of each patent listed that is not in the English language. It has been placed in the application file, but the information referred to therein has not been considered.

Applicant has submitted over 150 prior art documents for consideration. MPEP 2004 states: It is desirable to avoid the submission of long lists of documents if it can be avoided. Eliminate clearly irrelevant and marginally pertinent cumulative information. If a long list is submitted, highlight those documents which have been specifically brought to applicant's attention and/or are known to be of most significance. See Penn Yan Boats, Inc. v. Sea Lark Boats, Inc., 359 F. Supp. 948, 175 USPQ 260 (S.D. Fla. 1972), aff'd, 479 F.2d 1338, 178 USPQ 577 (5th Cir. 1973), cert. denied, 414 U.S. 874 (1974). But cf. Molins PLC v. Textron Inc., 48 F.3d 1172, 33 USPQ2d 1823 (Fed. Cir. 1995).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

Art Unit: 1712

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-11, 13-15, 17-29 and 31-33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Dymond (4777200).

Dymond teaches an invert emulsion drilling fluid within the scope of the present invention, which comprises polymers such as 2-ethylhexyl acrylate and acrylic acid copolymer (see the examples and in particular example 3). The specified mineral oils used are synthetic, and contain paraffins and olefins. Such drilling fluid would inherently have properties within the scope of the present invention.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 28 and 32-35 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dymond (4777200).

Dymond teaches a drilling fluid within the scope of the present invention, used in drilling a subterranean formation (see the examples). Dymond differs in not teaching the specific completion or gravel packing steps of claims 34 and 35. Dymond however teaches that the fluid may be used as a completion fluid or a packer fluid (column 5, lines 8-12). It would be obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to utilize the fluid of

Dymond in gravel packing operations, and completion operations, such as cementing and casing, given the teaching of Dymond that the fluids may be used as completion and packing fluids.

6. Claims 12, 16 and 30 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

7. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The prior art fails to teach or suggest the use of a vinyl neodecanoate copolymer within the specification of the current claims, in a drilling fluid system having the specified properties.
